

Please do not consider legislation or regulations which would undermine the provision of Indiana's Telephone Privacy law.

Before the Indiana Telephone Privacy became effective I dreaded hearing the telephone ring. Certainly, I can screen the calls but they are still disruptive. I sincerely believe that uninvited phone calls are an invasion of my privacy and the sanctuary of my home.

After the Indiana Telephone Privacy law became effective, I now know that when the phone rings it is for a purpose which I consider welcome.

The Indiana Telephone Privacy law is excellent consumer/constituant legislation.

National regulation or legislation which would undermine the provisions of the Indiana Telephone Privacy law only serve the needs of the very corrupt telecommunications industry.
